

AIR IRRIGATION IN CANADA TO PRODUCE RAIN

Calgary, Alta., Dec. 2.—A. E. Cole, formerly of the royal flying corps, has organized the Aerial Irrigation company here to attempt to rain by spraying clouds with liquid air.

Clouds that trail uselessly across the sky, says the new rainmaker, are rain droplets gone to waste for lack of a milkmaid. He hopes to become the milkmaid of the clouds.

What these milkmaids of blue sky pastures need, he declares, is to make them lay down their moisture in a shape of liquid air. He proposes to feed them from an airplane.

Cole declares the plan perfectly practicable. Clouds are said to be in the form of impenetrable vapor. Let a big condenser cloud trail itself across a snow-dusted mountain peak and the mild condenser the moisture. Liquid air, in Cole's scheme, will substitute for the impenetrable peak. Liquid air in its fluidity is an approach toward absolute zero.

When his company is in operation and a rain is needed Cole declares he will fly up among the clouds in an airplane equipped with a pump which should blow air toward the clouds. Scrambling lightly about some nebulous monster, he will spray its snowy sides with frozen air which will cause the moisture to coagulate and fall upon the thirsty earth in a refreshing shower.

If Cole's unique idea works out, farmers will be able to cut rain by a means as simple as turning on a faucet, and millions of dollars will be added to the productive value of the rapidly settling farm lands of western Canada.

JOHN H. BURNS, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who says his wonderful restoration to health since taking Tanlac has astonished all his friends, has gained twenty pounds.

"My friends are all astonished over my wonderful restoration to health since taking Tanlac," said John H. Burns, of Cincinnati, Ohio, recently.

"I don't know what it is, but there is something about Tanlac that really does the work," he said. "I have tried all the other medicines for this medicine I wouldn't be here now. I have gained twenty pounds besides. I have a splendid appetite now, and I eat anything I want without feeling troubled in the least afterwards."

"Before taking Tanlac my health was dreadfully run down. My mind was indifferent. I was tired all the time, and I never seemed hungry, and the little I ate didn't stay in my stomach. I couldn't get a good night's sleep. I lost thirty-four pounds and was going down hill rapidly. I seemed like the more medicine I took the worse I got."

"But since taking Tanlac I am like a brand new man. I sleep like a baby all night and feel just fine all day. In fact, I'm a perfectly well man now. I can do anything I want to do. Tanlac is sold in El Paso by Cordell Drug Co., in Ft. Hancock by Ft. Hancock General Store, and in El Paso by Fabens Drug Co.—Adv.

AMERICANS IN LONDON WILL HONOR WOMEN

London, Eng., Dec. 2.—Although the American society in London, which dates from 1895 and is the oldest of American societies here, confines its membership to men, it is making its annual Thanksgiving dinner this year an occasion for paying tribute to the work done by English women.

In addition to the dinner at the Hotel Cecil at which Gordon Selridge, the president of the society, will preside, have been accepted by women officially representing all the movements which women have initiated or served during the past 25 years.

The heads of all the women's war services will be there, and several other names of the British empire, including those of Mrs. Lloyd George and Mrs. Asquith, the American women who, before the war, were active in the work of the Red Cross, the Y. W. C. A., and the National Council of Women.

Many of these women, who did not leave their homes until the war broke out, were active in the work of the Red Cross, the Y. W. C. A., and the National Council of Women.
